200 years of excellence in tartans, woollens, tweeds – and more

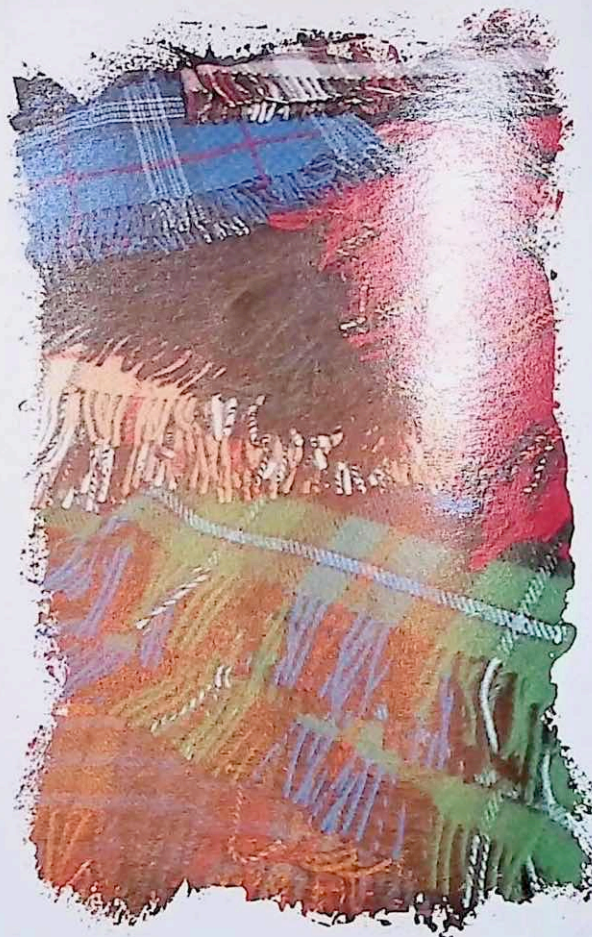

James Pringle Weavers of Inverness celebrates its Bicentenary in 1998, making it one of the oldest working weaving mills in Scotland.

Although some of the weaving techniques have altered over the years, the weaving mill still produces quality tartan rugs which are sold worldwide.

Information sheets are available in seven languages to guide you through the fascinating weaving process.

James Pringle Weavers Bicentenary Tartan is featured in the border of this leaflet.

Just a stroll across the courtyard takes you to the extensive James Pringle Weavers Mill Shop:
